Lawmakers Could OK Sports Betting This Year

By SCOTT JACKSON

Massachusetts lawmakers could look to join the growing spread of states with legalized sports betting this year, Sen. John Keenan said recently, but are unlikely to make any changes to the state's budding marijuana industry at this point.

Keenan said he anticipates his colleagues on Beacon Hill will file bills related to sports betting this year.

"I think it will come before the Legislature," Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, responded when asked about sports betting. "I don't know whether it will pass or not, but I think it will be a topic of discussion. I'm sure there will be bills filed related to it."

The United States Supreme Court in May 2018 ruled a 1992 federal law prohibiting sports gambling in all but four states - Delaware, Montana, Nevada and Oregon - was unconstitutional. Several states have moved to legalize sports betting since that ruling, including Rhode Island,

Officials: Cannons Teams

At Veterans' Memorial Stadium

By TOM GORMAN

School officials are assuring residents that the Boston Cannons lacrosse team's move to its new home at Veterans' Memorial Stadium will not interfere with Quincy athletic games.

That's the message from school committee members during a discussion on Dec. 12 to transfer control of the stadium from the school department to the park department. Earlier this month, Mayor Tom Koch signed a multi-year agreement with the Boston Cannons to play their eight home games at Veterans' Memorial Stadium during the summer beginning in June.

"Most of the (Boston Cannons) activity will be when the stadium is dormant during the summer," Koch told the committee. "There will be no interference during that time with (Quincy) school activities."

New Law Expunges Records Of Old Crimes

DA Morrissey Holds Training For Attorneys, Court Personnel

Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey and the Quincy Bar Associaton recently hosted a two-hour training for attorneys and court personnel on implementing a new law allowing people to expunge their records if they have led exemplary lives since making a criminal mistake years ago.

"The statute is narrowly drawn and specifically excludes domestic violence, gun crimes, drunk driving and certain others," Morrissey said. "But it purposefully includes past convictions for things that have since been decriminalized. Examples would be possession of a hypodermic needle, adult possession of less than two ounces of marijuana, and knowingly being present where heroin is kept."

Morrissey rented a portion of the Quincy Elks Lodge on Quarry Street for the Dec. 13 seminar. Presenters at the seminar included Assistant Norfolk District Attorney Susanne O'Neil, General Counsel for the Probation Department Sarah Joss, District Court General Counsel Zachary Hillman, Quincy Bar Association President Sarah Westra, and James Kennedy, Counsel to the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Attorneys earned two hours of continuing legal education credits for attend-

More than 75 attended, including Stoughton District Court Presiding Judge Daniel O'Malley, Brookline District Court Presiding Judge Mary Dacey White, and representatives from the Dedham, Quincy, Wren-

tham and Superior Court

"We reached out to the other stake holders in the process in early November and the response has been very gratifying," Morrissey said. "As the public's elected representative within the criminal justice system, I see it as appropriate to take the initiative in paving the way for eligible citizens to remove marks from their records that may be hindering them. We uphold the law, and this is now the law."

There are no blanket erasures of past convictions and the legislation does not decriminalize anything, Morrissey said. "But there are people who make one mistake years ago, perhaps before they were an adult, perhaps doing something no longer a crime, and they feel hindered that they need to answer yes on housing or employment forms that ask if they stand convicted of a crime. This provides a possible path forward."

The new statute, Chap. 276 Sec. 100E - 100K, creates slightly separate paths for those looking to expunge crimes committed before their 21st birthday and those who were over 21, Morrissey said. "It is not a simple statute, and if we are going to efficiently implement it in Norfolk County, then all of the stakeholders need to understand our roles and how to help citizens who want to pursue this," Morrissey said. "This statute is not about people who are living a life of crime. It opens the door to cleaning the record of those who have a mistake in their path followed by years of exemplary conduct. I see a place for that."

Officials: Cannons Will Not Interfere With Quincy Teams

"School sports comes first, always has, always will," Koch said.

School committee member Paul Bregoli, who is also a member of the parks and recreation board, concurred.

"We are vigilant about making sure Quincy Public Schools is first in any facility we oversee," Bregoli said of the parks and recreation board. "There has been some discussion in the community about the Cannons coming in and taking over the stadium. I can assure you that will not happen with this Park and Recreation Board because of its makeup and what we're charged to do."

The mayor explained that part of the agreement with the Boston Cannons includes the team funding improvements to the stadium. The city is still negotiating a contract with the team about what upgrades would be made.

"A lot of the infrastructure is dated and needs to be upgraded," Koch said. "We just replaced the field, but the bleachers, locker rooms, press box and scoreboard is dated. The goal would be to get the Cannons organization to make some major improvements to the stadium that would benefit all the youth that use the stadium."

Koch also said the organization could sponsor the city's youth and high schools' lacrosse teams and hold camps.

"It would be a tremendous asset to build those programs," he said.

Committee members
Kathryn Hubley and Douglas Gutro said they were pleased the Park Department transfer resolution gives priority to scheduling Quincy school teams.
Hubley had requested that the resolution gives Quincy

Gutro added he would like to see the Cannon's contract include a provision that gives Quincy teams first scheduling rights.

"Once we relinquish control, we would have a document that says that," he said.

Committee Vice Chair-

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo asked if the state Chapter 97 provision that would protect stadium as park land still applies under the transfer.

Koch said the provision stands.

"By allowing the park department to take full ownership, it would be protected it under Chapter 97 state law that protects park land," he said. "If the city tried to do something else with the stadium down the road, it would need vote of the city council and support of the mayor, two thirds passage of the state legislature and the signature of the governor."

Koch noted the stadium is in an environmentally sensitive area - located near Black's Creeks — and the having the state provision "really protects it."

The mayor added that in the past, some park land was used to build schools. He pointed to the Clifford Marshall School being built on site of the old Victory Park.

"I hope those days are over, building anything on park land," he said. "I can't predict what the priorities of the school committee will be down the road. It may or may not be athletic."

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you - refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still so low, lower than fixed-rate equity loans, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Burke Donates $10,000 To Saint Mary's Parish

Quincy attorney George Burke announces he donated $10,000 to Saint Mary's Parish in Quincy which completes a pledge he made of $50,000 to rebuild the tower at the church.

Burke is not a parishioner of Saint Mary's Parish but rather a parishioner at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston for over 75 years.

Burke said he gave this money to the people of West

Quincy for Saint Mary's Parish in consideration of the fact that they elected him Quincy city councillor at-large, state representative and as the Norfolk County district attorney for 12 years.

He said Saint Mary's Parish is a wonderful church and he still attends Mass there occasionally and he wishes the best in their endeavor to rebuild the tower.

Granite Gives Back This Holiday Season

Granite Telecommunications, based in North Quincy, has once again stepped up to help Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS) bring holiday cheer to local individuals and families in need.

The help comes at the right time as FBMS, along with service providers across the state, are grappling with sharp increases in the number of people experiencing homelessness and in need of assistance.

On Dec. 19, volunteers from Granite provided support during FBMS' Holiday Shopping Day held at Father Bill's Place in Quincy. At the event, shelter guests had an opportunity to pick up warm winter clothing as well as gifts for themselves and their loved ones. Dom's Dimes, a local charitable organization, also volunteered at the event.

In recent weeks, Granite volunteers also delivered Christmas trees to dozens of Quincy-area families living in FBMS housing. In addition, volunteers purchased and gift-wrapped hundreds of presents for those very same families.

Granite's support for FBMS comes as the agency is seeing a significant increase in stays at emergency shelters for individuals. Through the first two weeks of December, an average of 125 people per night stayed at Father Bill's Place, a 21% increase from 103 people per night during the same period last year. The agency receives state funding for only 75 beds at the Quincy shelter.

Between FBMS' two shelters in Quincy and Brockton, December's average nightly stays were up 25% from last year. Statewide, the homeless population jumped more than 14 percent in 2018, according to a new report from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

John Yazwinski, president and CEO of FBMS, attributed the increases at the Quincy and Brockton shelters to the rise in housing costs, an increase in the number of people being released from other systems of care, and the closing of nursing and rest homes for seniors. Over the past five years, the number of seniors served by FBMS shelters in Quincy and Brockton has increased by 52%.

Judith Flynn Certified Elder Law Attorney

The National Elder Law Foundation (NELF) announces Attorney Judith M. Flynn has completed its examination, experience, and continuing legal education requirements to attain the certification. Flynn is one of only 24 attorneys in Massachusetts to earn the CELA designation.

Certification in elder law provides a measure of assurance to the public that the attorney has an in-depth working knowledge of the wide range of legal issues that impact the elderly and disabled. The certification requires knowledge and experience in several areas including: health and personal care planning, premortem legal planning, fiduciary representation, legal capacity counseling, public benefits advice (including Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, SSI, and Veterans benefits) special needs counseling, housing coun-

Flynn is an active member of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA) and served as president of its Massachusetts Chapter (MassNAELA) in 2014.

Burke Contributions Benefit Charities

Quincy attorney George Burke announces he has made contributions to nearly 30 charities in 2018.

He said he has been giving his own retirement distribution to many charities that help the less fortunate for the past 16 years. In all, Burke said he has donated more than $1.5 million to the poor for many years.

Charities receiving a donation from Burke in 2018 are:

University of Massachusetts Athletics, Saint Mary's Parish, Parish of Saint Ann, Father Bill's and MainSpring, Newman Center, South Shore YMCA "George Trigger Burke Frozen 5K," Quincy School Community Partnership,

University of Massachusetts (scholarships), St. Catherine of Siena Academy, Boston College Law School, Thayer Academy "Arthur T. McCauley Hat In Mayoral Ring

City Councillor at-Large Francis X. McCauley announced that he was running for mayor of Quincy. McCauley, a 51-year old banker from Houghs Neck, had served seven years on the City Council in two split terms. He was also a member of the School Committee for six years.

In March 1969, Governor Francis Sargent appointed Mc-Cauley to a five-year term as the state appointed member of the Quincy Housing Authority.

During his announcement at the Neighborhood Club, McCauley told the group gathered there that he "suspects that there will be at least one more candidate in the race."

McCauley said his campaign slogan would be: "Frank McCauley is the right man for the right job at the right time."

THIS 1926 POSTCARD is a view of the new Quincy Police Headquarters building on the corner of Sea Street and the Southern Artery. A great deal of controversy surrounded the siting of the building until Mayor Perley Barbour selected this city-owned parcel. Finished in May, the dedication was delayed for two months due to the death of Chief Alfred Goodhue. He had been ill, but died unexpectedly at the young age of 52. He was widely admired and highly respected in the community. In his memory the citizens of Quincy contributed to a city-wide collection for a beautiful Quincy granite monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery and a handsome plaque in the new station. In the late 1980s, under Mayor Frank McCauley, this building was modernized and expanded with a new façade that substantially altered its appearance.

look to address the housing issue this spring.

"The governor's bill would take away the twothirds requirement on zoning and planning boards to pass zoning changes and make it a simple majority," Keenan said in a recent interview. "Many think that that will lead to the creation of more housing just by taking away that extra vote that's needed, so the majority of a board could vote for a zoning change that then could spur development. The governor is really pushing to get that passed by the end of the session.

"The Legislature has had a concern that it's not comprehensive enough. They want to do more. It doesn't address affordable housing and things of that nature, so they're not in any hurry necessarily to do it.

"If that doesn't pass by the end of the year, I think there will be a push in the spring to get a housing bill out as quickly as possible, and it might be more comprehensive than what the governor's bill right now is - and he is open to doing something more comprehensive, but he would like to see that bill pass.

"But for it to pass, there would have to be no objection by anybody in the Legislature. If one person opposed it, went in and objected to it...that would not pass this session."

Though projections say more housing is needed in the Boston area to meet the growing demand, Keenan said some residents feel too much housing is being built, so finding the right balance between the two sides is im-

"You hear people saying there is too much housing going on - too much housing being built. In the neighborhoods you have people saying, 'no more housing, no more housing,' then you look at all the projections of the need for housing, and it's just enormous," he said. "So it's finding that balance."

Keenan said there is several avenues lawmakers could consider to address the housing crisis, such as allowing accessory dwelling units by right or requiring some communities to have zoning districts that would allow for denser develop-

"The Legislature in the past has looked at doing in-law apartments, or accessory dwelling units," he said. "There have been two types of proposals on that. One would be to allow it as of right within the footprint of an existing building. The other proposal would be to allow an addition of so many square feet as of right - meaning you don't have to get zoning board approval or anything.

"They've looked at density requirements in certain communities - requiring communities to do a dense zoning district that would allow for more dense housing."

Keenan said he would like to see more transit-oriented development in communities served by the MB-TA's commuter rail lines.

"Transit-oriented velopment continues to be something that is a big push. I've looked at, for instance, the commuter rail lines," Keenan said. "There are a lot of commuter rail stations where there is very little development around the station - there is surface parking and not much else.

"The communities that really wanted to have that commuter rail, I think, have a responsibility to provide some housing near those commuter rail stops. I don't want it to necessarily impact some established neighborhoods, but you wanted the commuter rail, you should play a role in the housing crisis that we have."

Additionally, Keenan said the state's plan to extend commuter rail service to the South Coast - and the possibility of providing that service to Springfield could also address the housing issues in the Boston

"People say rather than focus on building so many housing units in the Greater Boston area, you can look at the South Coast - the New Bedford, Fall River area and use the South Coast rail there. Or you could look at Worcester and Springfield and look at the rail line out there - improving that," Keenan said.

"Those housing markets become feeder housing markets and then that would lead to more economic development in those cities as well, so you wouldn't have it all based in Boston. That would help ease some of the housing crunch and some of the transportation issues. It's

Banana-Oat Muffins

By MARIE

I have made banana breads and muffins with additions and variations many times, but have never used oatmeal in a banana-based recipe. Today's recipe is for a banana-oat muffin and the addition of the oatmeal really takes the cake (or muffin.)

Pre-heat oven to 400 degrees and line a 12-cup muffin tin with liners.

Recipe:

1 and ½ cups of flour

1 cup of oats ½ cup of sugar

2 teaspoons of baking powder

1 teaspoon baking soda 1/2 teaspoon salt

1 egg

2 bananas mashed (about 1 cup) ¾ cup milk 1/3 cup vegetable oil 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla extract

Mix together the flour, oats, sugar, baking powder, baking soda and salt in a bowl.

In another bowl, beat the egg lightly and then stir in bananas, milk, oil and vanilla until well blended.

Combine the two bowls of mixtures, and mix until well blended. (The batter should be lumpy.)

Divide the batter among the lined muffin tins. (If you like you can sprinkle the tops

Bake for 18 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean.

Transfer to a wire rack and cool for 5 minutes before removing muffins.

Grain Free Herb Sesame Crackers

By SUSIE

Crackers are something many folks crave (salty crunchy) with either a dip or with some cheese, and end up eating too many or eating the kind out of a box made with refined flours and sugars.

These crackers are gluten and grain free, loaded with protein, as well as fiber, calcium, healthy fats, and some important vitamins and minerals not found in your everyday crackers.

Did you know that a serving of sesame seeds contain more calcium than a glass of milk? These are easy too!

> GRAIN FREE HERB SESAME CRACKERS

3 cups almond flour (I use Honeyville brand, you can get online, it is by far, the best and fluffiest)

1 1/2 tsps sea salt 1/2 tsp garlic powder

1/2 tsp onion powder

1 cup sesame seeds 2 tablespoons olive oil or avocado oil

Preheat oven to 350. In one bowl combine dry ingredients and in the other combine eggs and oil. I like to mix well with a mixer or immersion blender. Combine and mix well with wooden spoon.

Place dough between 2 pieces of parchment paper and roll to about 1/16 inches. Take off top piece and cut into squares with sharp knife or even a pizza cutter. You can even use cookie cutters.

Bake about 12 minutes until lightly gold-

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Cold sores, also referred to as fever blisters, are caused by a virus, but not the same types that cause you to cough and sneeze. Instead, they transpire because of an infection with the herpes simplex virus (HSV).

Some people mistake cankers for cold sores but they are not the same. Cold sores usually appear on your lip. Canker sores affect the inside of your mouth, are not contagious and don't involve the herpes virus. The cause of cankers is unknown.

Cold sores typically indicate their arrival with a warning episode of red, inflamed skin. Next, tiny, fluid-filled blisters develop on and around the lips. These blisters are often clumped together in clusters. After the blisters break, a crust forms over the resulting sore and healing usually takes place in two to four weeks without causing scarring. Subsequent to the first time you get cold sores, your body may produce antibodies, and you may never develop another infection. However, approximately 40% of U.S. adults will acquire repeated cold sores.

Cold sores spread from person to person by close contact, such as kissing. They're caused by a herpes simplex virus (HSV-1) closely related to the one that causes genital herpes (HSV-2). Both of these viruses can affect your mouth or genitals and can be spread by oral sex.

Cold sores are contagious even if you cannot see any sores. There's no cure for HSV infection, and the blisters may reappear. Antiviral medications can help cold sores heal more rapidly and may decrease additional outbreaks.

A cold sore usually passes through several stages:

- · Tingling and itching. Many people feel an itching, burning or tingling sensation around their lips for a day or so before a small, hard, painful spot appears and blisters erupt.
- · Blisters. Small fluidfilled blisters typically break out along the border where the outside edge of the lips meets the skin of the face. Cold sores can also arise around the nose or on the cheeks.
- · Oozing and crusting. The small blisters may merge and then break, resulting in open sores that will ooze fluid and then crust over.

Signs and symptoms vary, depending on whether this is your initial outbreak or a recurrence. They can persist for several days, and may take two to four weeks to heal completely. Recurrences typically appear at the same spot each time.

During first-time outbreaks, some people also experience:

- Fever
- · Painful eroded gums
- Sore throat
- Headache
- Muscle aches
- Swollen lymph nodes

Children under 5- years old may have cold sores inside their mouths and the lesions are commonly mistaken for canker sores. Cold sores generally clear up without treatment. See your doctor if:

- · You have a compromised immune system
- · The cold sores don't heal within two weeks
 - Symptoms are severe
- · You have frequent recurrences of cold sores
- · You experience irritation in your eyes

Cold sores are caused by particular strains of the herpes simplex virus (HSV). HSV-1 typically causes cold sores. HSV-2 is usually responsible for genital herpes. Nonetheless, either type can cause sores in the facial area or on the genitals. Most people who are infected with the type that is responsible for cold sores never develop signs and symptoms.

Cold sores are most contagious when oozing blisters are apparent, however you can transmit the virus to others even if you don't have blisters. Shared eating utensils and water bottles, razors and towels, as well as kissing, may spread HSV-1. Oral sex can spread HSV-1 to the genitals and HSV-2 to the lips.

- Viral infection or fever
- · Hormonal changes, such as those related to menstruation
- Stress
- Fatigue
- Exposure to sunlight and wind
- Changes in the immune system

About 90 percent of adults globally, even those who've never experienced symptoms of an infection, test positive for confirmation of this virus.

People who have weakened immune systems are at heightened risk of complications from the HSV. Medical conditions and treatments that increase your risk include:

- HIV/AIDS
- Severe burns
- Eczema
- Cancer chemotherapy Anti-rejection drugs for organ transplants In some people, the HSV virus can precipitate difficulties in other areas of the body, including: • Fingertips. Both HSVto the fingers. This type of infection is often referred to as herpes whitlow. Children who suck their thumbs may transmit the infection from their mouths to their thumbs.

• Eyes. The virus can occasionally trigger an eye infection. Repeated infections can cause scarring and injury, which may lead to vision problems or blindness.

· Widespread areas of skin. People who have a skin condition called eczema are at higher risk of cold sores spreading all across their bodies. This can become a medical emergency.

· Other organs. In people with weakened immune systems, the virus can also affect organs such as the spinal cord and brain.

If you develop cold sores frequently or if you're at high risk of serious complications, your healthcare provider may prescribe an antiviral medication for you to take on a routine basis. If sunlight seems to trigger your recurrences, apply sunblock to the spot where the cold sore is apt to erupt.

To help avoid spreading cold sores to other people or to other parts of your body utilize the following precau-

· Avoid skin-to-skin contact with others while blisters are present. The virus spreads most easily when there are wet secretions from the blisters.

• Do not share items. Utensils, towels, razors, lip balm, eating utensils, water bottles and other items can spread the virus when blisters are present.

Keep your hands clean. When you have a cold sore, wash your hands carefully before touching yourself and other people, especially babies. Handwashing is the number one way to prevent the spread of communicable diseases including HSV.

Council On Aging Activities, Events In January

By MARIE FERENT

Quincy Council on Aging The Quincy Council on Aging announces the following activities and events during the month of January.

Bingo + Songs = Singo Tuesday, Jan. 8 At 1 P.M. at the Kennedy Center 440 East Squantum St.

Singo with Jim the DJ! This is not your Grandma's bingo! Singo is bingo where we replace the numbers with your favorite songs. Test your musical knowledge and luck. Have some fun and win some prizes! Sing, dance laugh, Singo is all about a good time. Light refreshments will be served. $5PP due at time of registration.

Retirement Lifestyle Training Tuesday, Jan. 22 at 10:30 A.M. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St.

What are you going to do when you retire? How will you fill those 40-50 hours a week you devoted to work?

How do you avoid boredom? How can you make retirement a time of positive growth and change; of enjoyment and purpose?

This thought provoking seminar will give you a fresh look at retirement whether you are planning for it, or are already retired. Retirement is more than just having enough money - though that is important. Its duration may be equal to, or even longer than your working or child rearing years. Spending this time fruitfully is essential for happiness, and contentment.

Space is limited. Registration is required. Call the Kennedy Center at 617-376-1506 to reserve your spot.

Sketching with Bob Farrell Six-week session Jan. 7th-Feb. 25th at 1:30 P.M. Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St.

Join Bob Farrell for sketching classes at the Kennedy Center. Students will be guided toward the goal of seeing with an artist's eye to capture their environment.

The emphasis on this course will be having fun, developing a new life enhancing daily habit and focusing on the process of drawing rather than the product.

AVOIDING THE NIGHTLY GRIND

When enamel on the molars develops wear spots, it may be due to "bruxism." which is the involuntary grinding, gnashing, or clenching of teeth at night or during the day. Because bruxers are usually unaware that they are grinding their teeth, the dentist or hygienist is usually the first to spot the signs of tooth-grinding. Otherwise, those who grind their teeth may be alerted to the problem by symptoms such as sore jaw muscles, earaches, headaches, and disturbed sleep. It is important to pinpoint and treat the cause of bruxism, which can usually be traced to stress, malocclusion, or an issue with the temporomandibular joint. After that, the dentist can fabricate a custom-made mouth guard that helps prevents tooth damage

For some people, life's many stresses can sometimes cause them to grind their teeth throughout the day, making this damaging practice a 24/7 hazard to their oral health. Whether you are in our office for bruxism or just for a simple cleaning, our personal, casual, and relaxed style in providing quality dental care will help put you at ease. Find out just how stress-free and pleasant a visit to the dentist can be-call us for complete family dental care at 617 479-6220. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street.

P.S. If left unchecked, brux ism can lead to tooth sensi tivity, chipped tooth enamel

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty - Should I Take Widow's Benefits Or Retirement Benefits?

By RUSSELL GLOOR AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am 58 years old. My spouse passed away last year, and I am entitled to survivor benefits. I am trying to plan for when I can retire from working, but don't know if I should take my widow's benefit or my own Social Security. I called Social Security twice and have received two different answers. If I claim Social Security at 62, will I receive 70 or 80% of the full amount? This makes a huge difference in deciding when I should retire. Signed: Widowed Worker

Dear Widowed Worker: There are two different types of Social Security benefits that you need to be concerned with - your benefit as a survivor; and your own SS retirement benefit which you have earned from working all your life. The thing to keep in mind is that any time any Social Security benefit is taken earlier than one's full retirement age, it is reduced (born in 1960 your normal full retirement age (FRA) is age 67).

You will be eligible for your survivor's benefit when you reach age 60 (unless you're disabled in which case it's 50). But if you take the survivor's benefit at 60 it will only be about 71.5% of what you would get by waiting until your full retirement age to claim it. Your FRA as a widow is less than your normal FRA; your widow's FRA is 66 years and 8 months. The reduction for claiming the survivor's benefit earlier than your widow's FRA is about 4.75% per year early. Your survivor's benefit will reach its maximum (100% of what your husband was entitled to at his death) when you reach your widow's full retirement age, but it does not continue to grow if you wait beyond that to claim it.

You will be eligible to collect your own Social Security retirement benefits from your lifetime work record when you reach 62 years of age, but if you take it at age 62 you will only get 70% of what you would get by waiting until your full retirement age of 67. SS retirement benefits are reduced by 6.7% per year for the first 3 years claimed early and 5% per year for anything more than 3 years, so with an FRA of 67 your benefit would be cut by 30% at age 62. Unlike survivor's benefits, your retirement benefit continues to grow in value (by 8% per year) until you are 70 years of age, So, at age 70 you can get a retirement benefit, which is 24% more than you would get at your full retirement age. Here's an example, assuming your Social Security retirement benefit at your normal FRA is $1000: If you claim at age 62 your benefit amount will be $700/month; claim at age 70 your benefit amount will be $1240/month.

Your wisest approach will be to determine which type of benefit will pay you the most for the rest of your life. If that is your survivor's benefit, then you might consider taking your own SS retirement benefit at age 62 and collect that until your survivor benefit reaches maximum at age 66 + 8 months and claim the survivor benefit then. If your own SS retirement benefit will pay more at age 70 than your survivor benefit will pay at your widow's full retirement age, then you can consider collecting your survivor's benefit until your own SS benefit reaches maximum at age 70 and switch to the higher benefit (your own) at that time. You have a choice of which benefit to take and when, but whenever you apply you should be very explicit which benefit you are applying for. If you want to take the survivor's benefit and let your own grow, you should apply saying "I am applying for survivor's benefits only; I want my retirement benefit to grow." If you are applying for your own SS retirement benefit, you should apply saying "I am applying for my retirement benefit only; I want my survivor's benefit to grow until my widow's full retirement age." To submit a question, visit the website amacfoundation. org/programs/social-security-advisory or email ssadvisor@ amacfoundation.org.

Keenan said Treasurer Deb Goldberg has discussed the issue of sports betting, and online gambling, during a recent revenue hearing on Beacon Hill.

"Treasurer Goldberg addressed the issue a little bit at the consensus revenue hearing and talked about whether you legalize sports betting and whether you legalize online betting in particular, what the impact is on the lottery and how you prevent people from betting more than they should," Keenan said.

"She conveyed that there is some sense she'd have a better ability to control people if it's online betting, because you can have limits on credit cards and thingslike that."

Keenan said the push to legalize sports betting is being made to capture additional revenue for the state, and to regulate the illegal gambling already taking place.

"It is revenue-driven. Even though the state has done pretty well this past year with revenue with about a billion dollar surplus, up until then our revenue growth wasn't great and the Congressional Budget Office is predicting a late 2019 slowdown," Keenan said.

"There is a revenue component to it, but there is also a general sense out there and we saw it with medical marijuana then recreational marijuana - to address the black market. That approach is to legalize things - address the issue of gambling and having that money go offshore, cut down on the black market and get revenue out of it.'

Keenan said he was concerned the number of people who bet on sports could increase if lawmakers were to legalize it.

"Not everyone is using marijuana, and then once you normalize it the rates of people using it do increase because the industry wants to get as many people using it as possible. So if you had 10 percent of the population using it, the industry is going to want to look obviously to increase that number, and that's the same with gambling," Keenan said.

"Once you normalize it and legitimize it as a business, then business models come in and every business model in the world is based on growth. You will have more people exposed to marijuana, exposed to gambling, and we just don't know what the impact on society will be."

Keenan said there has been no talk on Beacon Hill of making changes to the state's marijuana laws, such as increasing taxes or changes to licensing rules. The Cannabis Control Commission, he said, is focused on licensing new retailers of adult-use, or recreational, cent local option tax. Sales marijuana and also recently took control of the state's medical marijuana program from the Department of Public Health.

"I have heard little discussion about the marijuana industry. It did come up at the consensus revenue hearing," Keenan said. "At the consensus revenue hearing, there was some discussion about the lottery revenues, marijuana revenues and things of that nature, but there has been no discussion about raising the taxes, increasing the number of li-

"I think they just want to get through what they have to get through, which is to continue licensing the retail facilities, license the grow facilities, making sure all the safeguards are in place, and now they're transitioning into managing the medical marijuana program as well. So they've got a lot on their plate from an administrative standpoint.

"Legislatively, I haven't heard any talk about changes in taxes, increasing the licenses or anything like that."

The Bay State's first two adult-use pot shops opened in Leicester and Northampton in November, and had more $7 million in combined sales over their first weeks. Additional shops began opening elsewhere in the state by mid Retail sales are subject to a 17 percent state tax - a 10.75 percent excise tax on top of the regular 6.25 percent sales tax - and a 3 perof medical marijuana are not taxed.

Keenan said he was not convinced marijuana would be a boon for the state, because it remains unknown how much the program will cost to administer, or what its social costs will be.

"I don't know if it will ever be a boon," Keenan said. "There has been no true assessment of what the costs are going to be associated with the administration of the program. We're getting a better idea on that.

"There has been no real assessment of what the social costs are - meaning increased dependence. People always say you can't get addicted to marijuana, but there are a lot of people who end up needing treatment to stop smoking marijuana. Impact on your work - we're finding some pretty good studies out now kind of telling what the impact of the opioid epidemic is on the economy. We don't have any idea about marijuana, and so until we get a sense on that, I don't know we can say the revenues will offset

"The industry will say from the outset, 'you're going to get $40, $80 million dollars this year - whatever it may be - but we're up to a budget that's in the mid $30 billions...$30, $40, $80 million is a lot of money, but in that context it's not a ton of

"It's going to be, I think, quite a while before we know whether it's worked without negatively impacting society."

Keenan said he was also concerned the industry would target children, like the tobacco, e-cigarette and alcohol industries.

"They still, I believe, are going to indirectly be targeting children. That's their market. That was what the cigarette industry did. Clearly that's what Juul did, in my opinion. They put flavors in and made them available to people to vape. Look how quickly that happened," Keenan said.

"So there are models out there that the tobacco industry established and the vaping industry established and I'm sure marijuana is going to try it as well. Alcohol does it too."

Additionally, Keenan said he is concerned about motorists driving while high and has raised the issue in conversations with Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey.

"When I'm out driving, I smell it all the time," Keenan said:

He noted there is no breath test for marijuana, unlike alcohol, and blood tests are not always reliable because THC - the chief psychoactive component of marijuana - can remain detectable in blood even after its effects have worn off.

"There is really no test like a Breathalyzer presently where you can say 'hey, blow into this,' and you get a reading," Keenan said. "Even in Colorado where they have blood level established, because you could smoke marijuana on a Sunday night and drive to work in the morning. Say you got in an accident and they tested your blood, you'd have THC in your blood, and yet you could make a very reasonable argument that you weren't high and yet you could still have pretty high levels of THC, because the THC stays in the system. So it's pinpointing when the person used or whether they're under the influence.

"They do have some recognition experts that can administer a battery of tests on the roadside or at a police station. There are some issues about how reliable that is, but they're pretty well trained. Do we need more of them? That's one option.

"How far along is the testing to determine if somebody is under the influence? There are some companies that claim they're very close, but nothing I think that would pass the requirements of the court system has been approved yet."

"I've raised the issue with the district attorney of what probable cause is necessary to pull someone over," Keenan continued. "Clearly, if someone is weaving and it's observed - crossing the lanes, driving erratically, speeding, whatever it is - there is reason to pull someone over. As far as I know, presently, smelling marijuana is not probable cause to pull someone over. It could be, but it's really not

"I think obviously if a police officer observed someone driving while smoking marijuana and smelled it as well, they have probable cause to stop somebody. But if a police officer is going down the street and there is four cars around and the police officer smells marijuana and has a pretty strong hunch it's from the car right next to them - even if they don't observe somebody smoking - do they have the right to pull the car over? It's still unclear.

"Something may be done. I've been kind of toying with the idea, can you give the officer, if there is a reasonable belief a particular car is the source of a marijuana smell, they can pull that car over just for the purposes of that, and then maybe issue a civil citation It would be tough - maybe somebody is not under the influence. It could be a passenger in a car smoking."

Neighbor Works Raises $100,000 At Gala

In 1981, NeighborWorks Southern Mass began as a small neighborhood revitalization program focused on serving low-income neighborhoods in Quincy.

Thirty-seven years later, the organization has grown to become a regional community development nonprofit that has generated an estimated $100 million in direct investment into local communities by developing hundreds of affordable homes, repairing and improving thousands more, and counseling thousands of first-time homebuyers, elderly homeowners, and those in danger of losing their homes to foreclosure.

Those accomplishments recently celebrated when NeighborWorks Southern Mass held the There's No Place Like Home: NeighborWorks Annual Gala, which raised over $100,000 for the organization's efforts to increase affordable housing for all and strengthen communities. The event, home. Among the current initiatives highlighted was the completion of NeighborWorks' largest project to date, The Watson, a 140-apartment unit building in Quincy. Point that opened this fall.

At the gala, Neighbor-Works also recognized the community contributions of John Curtis, owner of Curtis Construction, who was honored with the Robert and Mildred Foy Good Neighbor Award. This award is named after the late Robert Foy and his wife Mildred Foy who were lifelong residents of Quincy who put their moral and social responsibility at the forefront of the City they called an individual who embodies

"Over the last decade, I have gotten to know John through the many projects we have worked on together," said Robert Corley, executive director of NeighborWorks Southern Mass. "I realized how he was more than just a builder; he is a friend, a mentor and someone who is deeply passionate about our and many other nonprofits' missions.

"In the past several years, John Curtis and Curtis Construction has been one of the leading builders for formerly homeless veterans' housing," Corley added.

During his remarks, John Curtis shared with the attendees that, " . . . developing affordable housing and working with nonprofits and their mission has truly enriched my life." He also shared his reasons for working with nonprofits which include, "the ability to work with a diverse workforce, interact within communities' environmentally conscious building, and see the world through the eyes of those within the community."

Register Of Deeds Guest Speaker At Norfolk Bar Association Meeting Jan. 23

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell will be one of the. guest speakers at the Bar Association of Norfolk County general meeting to be held Wednesday, Jan. 23rd at 5:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

O'Donnell, who is a former president of the Bar Association, said he is delighted and honored to speak before the group.

"I have always been impressed with the mission of this Association and its innovative and extensive outreach to community service," O'Donnell said. "It has a great reputation for its legal seminars and training programs for its membership and also for the altruism it exhibits in providing legal assistance to the general public in several areas of the law, including its "Lawyer for the Day" program."

O'Donnell said he will speak to the Bar Association about the ways in which the Registry of Deeds can be of service to the legal community, specifically in accessing and researching the approximately 8.5 million land records housed by the Registry of Deeds. He will also talk about how 2018 was a milestone year as the Registry celebrated its 225th birthday, highlighting some of the notable land records of famous people who lived in the County, including four U.S. Presidents, Nobel Prize winners and one Supreme Court Justice from Dedham who was considered by many scholars to be one of the ablest of the Court's jurors, by the name of Louis Brandeis.

O'Donnell is a graduate of Boston College Law School and is a former assistant district attorney. He has been the Register of Deeds in Norfolk County since 2002.

North Quincy Sacred Heart Youth Basketball 'Challenger Basketball'

North Quincy Sacred Heart Basketball announces a basketball program to include children with special needs and disabilities, namely Challenger Basketball/Buddy B-Ball or Adap-tive Basketball.

"Now in our second year we want to continue to offer all children in our city the opportunity to play basketball in a controlled environment outside of a traditional basketball setting," said SHB Adaptive Basketball Coordinator Jim Ross.

What is Challenger/ Adaptive or Buddy basket-

· Open to Children with Special Needs

· Introduce and develop the basic skills in basketball

· Teach the game of basketball at a level the individual player can understand

· Conduct activities that are fun for participants, yet enhance the players level of performance

• Create an environment that encourages good sportsmanship and camaraderie

· Seek opportunities to build the confidence and sense of accomplishment of the players

· Have fun.

"We're excited to get this program started again and keeping this group of kids active and having fun," Ross said.

SHB's Adaptive Basketball starts Saturday, Jan. 5th and will run Saturdays to Feb. 23rd with all sessions at Central Middle School Quincy. This is a free program open to players of special needs 5 years of age and up from any community.

Interested families can register for this free program at - http://www.sacred-

Jack O'Brien Paces Presidents Past Red Raiders, 3-2

By TREVOR WENNERS

The Quincy High School boys' ice hockey team showcased its depth Dec. 26, as the Presidents received at least one point from eight different skaters during a 3-2 victory over North Quincy in the opening round of the Quincy Youth Arena Holiday Tournament.

The Presidents (4-1, 3-1 Patriot League), who punched their ticket to the championship game of the QYA Tournament against King Philip on Dec. 27, were led by junior forward Jack O'Brien (goal, assist). Senior forwards John Early and Noah Wines each tallied a goal and an assist for the Red Raiders (4-2, 2-1 Patriot League), as the loss sent them into the consolation match on Dec. 27 against Milton.

Quincy put together a nice surge in the middle of the game with three unanswered goals, but Presidents head coach Ted Walsh Jr. is still looking for a complete three-period game.

Once that is achieved, it will be a scary proposition for opposing teams. Despite experiencing multiple lapses, Quincy defeated Plymouth North, 5-2, and then took care of business against defending-Division 2 State Champion Plymouth South, 8-4. The Presidents' lone loss of the year was a 4-3 decision against Duxbury, as Walsh thinks the skating game is the key.

"I thought the first two periods was a typical Quincy-North Quincy game," Walsh said. "I thought in the third period, they completely outplayed us. We are still in search of a complete game. We want to skate three periods and we have not done that. I am not so sure we deserved that one but we will take it. A win is a win."

Early put the Raiders on the board 33 seconds into the first period, finding the back of the net from

With 5:30 left in the first period, senior goalie Daniel Murphy made one of his many great stops for Quincy, as senior Kieran O'Driscoll snuck a pass across the crease to sophomore Ronan Kelly, but Murphy was able to go post-to-post to deny the attempt. Quincy tried to keep the momentum going up ice with a breakaway by junior Thomas MacPherson, but NQ sophomore goalie Asher Wines stood tall.

Quincy junior captain Brendan Bailey knotted the game at 1-1 with 1:23 left in the first on a wrist shot from the right circle, assisted by senior captain Griffin Lynch and O'Brien, as the Presidents' student section

"I grew up watching the rivalry," Walsh said. "I actually played in it, had boys play in it and coached in it, so I am really embedded into this rivalry. Anytime that we can beat North Quincy it is nice."

Quincy, which has qualified for the playoffs in five straight seasons, took the lead for good with 5:50 left in the second, as senior Nick Murray rifled a pass over to junior Jake DeFranco, who fired a shot wide right. De-Franco did not quit on the play and won a puck battle beneath the goal line, and bounced a shot off the goalie for a 2-1 advantage.

QUINCY AND NORTH QUINCY renewed their on-ice rivalry playing a very spirited and physical game Dec. 26 at Quincy Youth Arena. The Presidents emerged with a 3-2 victory. Here North's Peyton McGaffigan battle Quincy's Daniel O'Leary for the puck?

"Everything we do works off our forecheck," Walsh said. "If we are in on the forecheck; we take time and space away. North Quincyhad a lot of time and space tonight to lug the puck out of its zone and make plays. That is unacceptable if we want to continue to win."

O'Brien gave the Presidents a 3-1 lead with 1:40 left in the second. He established his position in the slot and redirected an outstanding drive from the left point by senior Bobby Dunn.

North Quincy, which opened its season with three straight wins against Everett, Norton and Pembroke, went into the second intermission and kept its head to make a comeback bid in the third, and 1:53 into the frame, Noah Wines stuffed a shot just inside the right post, assisted by Early, as all of a sudden it was a onegoal game.

'We are worried about making sure we are getting better every day, whether it is in practice or a shift in a game," Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons said. "Wins and losses are huge obviously, but our two best games that we have played are our two losses against Hanover and Quincy. We are building off that and going gameby-game, shift-by-shift and period-by-period."

Down the stretch, Murphy made all the big stops up. The unit was determined for Quincy, and it was crucial because North sent everything except the kitchen sink in that period, holding a 12-4 advantage in shots. The biggest stop by Murphy occurred with 2:15 remaining on a breakaway by junior Cormac Flaherty. NQ, which is trying to trying to get back into the MIAA Tournament for the first time since 2016, emptied its net with 45.8 seconds left, but Quincy did a good job breaking up the Red Raiders' rushes.

> "Daniel Murphy bailed us out in the third period," Walsh said. "He always finds a way. He battles and is fully invested in the game. He puts in the time during the offseason and he is getting what he deserves."

Murphy, Lynch Lead Quincy To Tourney Title

By TREVOR WENNERS

For the first time since 2015, the Quincy High School boys' ice hockey team was crowned champions of the Quincy Youth Arena Holiday Tournament Dec. 27.

Senior goalie Daniel Murphy recorded a 21-save shutout and senior captain defenseman Griffin Lynch pitched in with a pair of goals during a 3-0 victory over King Philip in the title nament, our goal is obviously to win it," Presidents head coach Ted Walsh Jr. said. "We could not have drawn it up any better. We got in on the forecheck pretty well the year."

In the consolation game, North Quincy (5-2, 2-1 Patriot League) handled its business in a convincing 4-1 win over Milton, as the unit tonight. I think overall this earned third-place honors.

"Anytime we host a tour- was our best performance of The Red Raiders received a pair of two-goal efforts from senior forwards Noah Wines and Kieran O'Driscoll. Milton (0-6) finished fourth after winning the tournament in each of the past two years, as senior Jared Carney scored the lone goal for the Wildcats.

In the title game, the Presidents (5-1, 3-1 Patriot League) came out with a purpose, as senior forward Jason Whalen attacked the net on the first shift of the game down the left wing, but his shot went just wide

Lynch, who is always dangerous with his deadly shot from the point, recorded a strong scoring bid from the left point 2:40 into the first frame, but his drive was denied by Warriors senior goalie James Lewis. With 8:22 remaining in the first, Lynch cashed in on an unorthodox goal, as he was carrying the puck through the neutral zone, and lobbed it in deep; instead of caroming along the boards, the puck took an odd bounce and went toward the net, beating Lewis five-hole for a 1-0 lead. At the 9:41 mark of the opening period, Lynch flicked a wrist shot from the right point, which found the top of the net, assisted by junior captain Brendan Bailey, during a power-play situation, pushing the hosts' lead to 2-0. Murphy, who always has a knack for playing his best brand of hockey in clutch moments, turned aside a scoring chance by junior Jack Coulter on the first shift after the second goal.

"Daniel Murphy was the player of the game," Walsh said. "He made huge saves, and that is the best game that I have ever seen him play other than last year's tournament game."

With 11:50 remaining in the second, Murphy flashed his glove and robbed junior Chris Daniels from right in front of the net in the slot. Murphy then kept the Presidents' two-goal advantage intact with 4:33 showing on the scoreboard, recording a glove save on a drive from the right point by senior Conor Cooke.

Senior captain Daniel O'Leary cashed in on a wrist shot from the left circle at the 1:25 mark of the third, and all of a sudden Quincy was starting to blow the game open with a 3-0 lead. Murphy once again rose to the occasion with 10 minutes left in regulation, going post-to-post to stop a shot by Coulter on a feed across the top of the crease by junior Joe Boselli. Murphy calmly stopped an attempt in the slot by sophomore Paul McDonald with 5:50 on the clock.

Quincy nearly made it 4-0 on a power-play opportunity with 3:25 remaining, as Whalen rifled a shot right off a faceoff, but Lewis made an exceptional stop for the Warriors (3-3).

"We are still in search of that three-period performance where we play well the whole game," Walsh said. "We have not done it yet, but we are getting there. Once we find our skating game consistently, we will be fine. Our best hockey is in front of us. We still have not hit our stride yet, and I think we will."

Throughout the tilt, both teams played a physical and hard-nose brand of hockey with a total of 14 penalties between the teams, including nine in the third period alone. Both teams were strong on the forecheck, but neither team was able to get into a consistent flow. The game went back and forth, Cont'd On Page 19

QCAN To Cosponsor Documentary Film On Anti-Fracking Activism

Can David still beat Goliath, even in a day when Goliath has acquired wealth and power far beyond the imaginings of the Biblical villain?

That question lies at the heart of the documentary film Unfractured, which will be shown at two Ouincy libraries in January. The 2017 film, cosponsored by Quincy Climate Action Network, Fore River Residents Against Compressor Station (FRRACS), and the Thomas Crane Public Library, will screen at the Adams Shore library branch, 519 Sea St., at 7 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 7. It will also screen at the main branch, 40 Washington St., at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 16.

Admission is free, and all are welcome.

Unfractured follows Sandra Steingraber, a Ph.D. biologist and environmental activist from Trumansburg, N.Y., as she works for a state ban on hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, a means of extracting natural gas and oil from underground shale formations using pressurized water and a toxic brew of chemicals. With fracking, energy companies can get at deposits of oil and gas that were previously beyond their reach, but it has been shown to pollute air, water, and soil.

In addition, environmentalists argue, it encourages increased reliance on natural gas, a major contributor to climate change, for heating and electricity generation. And of course, as shown in dramatic fashion by recent events in Andover and Lawrence, natural gas is a highly explosive compound that can endanger lives and property.

The film shows Steingraber speaking at rallies, debating fossil fuel industry supporters and representatives in a forum at Cornell University, and being jailed for her part in a blockade near the entrance to an old salt mine underneath New York's Lake Seneca that is slated for conversion to a natural gas storage facility. She also travels to Romania to support a campaign against fracking by the American fossil fuel giant Chevron, during which she falls under constant surveillance by the police and gendarmerie, who also are depicted gassing and roughing up protesters. Throughout, she struggles with the improvisational nature of anti-fracking activism. After the debate at Cornell, for instance, she says, "In spite of all the arguments, the evidence, and the data, we're not going to win this on the merits of gently making the case.... I think we're at a stage where we just have to try stuff."

During Steingraber's jail term, a fellow inmate who has suffered a life of addiction and physical abuse, says, "I'm not trying to find myself; I'm trying to create myself." In a way, American citizens are facing the same challenge, Steingraber reflects: "We've been living so long under the tyranny of the fossil fuel industry that it's come to seem normal, so when a Texas-based gas company buys our lakeshore in order to store vast quantities of explosive hydrocarbon gas in old salt mines underneath, imperiling drinking water, the climate, and everything in between, we don't know what to do. We can't find the path to victory; we have to create it."

Steingraber's causes, especially the fight against the underground gas storage facility, remind Alice Arena, president of FRRACS, of her own group's campaign against the proposed Fore River compressor station. Like the compressor station, Arena says, the Lake Seneca gas storage facility "was going to be an environmental disaster, and it was going to bring nothing to the people who lived" in the area.

"The film's lesson," she says, "is that you never give up, that you keep fighting.... You have to fight from every angle-legal action, protesting, getting your legislators involved. Because these projects are not just a problem for the neighborhood; they're a problem for the as Quincy held a narrow 22-21 edge in shots, and an 8-5 lead during the third.

"We knew King Philip was going to be physical and that they had skill," Walsh said. "We said that. we were going to have to

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of: December 30th, 2018

- Dewatering continues on the site of the old Hancock Parking lot. The contractor on site is continuing with the excavation. and hauling off materials where the new garage is to be built. The bolting and lagging for the earth support have begun and will continue thru the month of January. To get an idea of the size of the basement parking area, which will be larger than the garage footprint, you can go around to the backside of the Four's Restaurant and look through the fence. The above grade parking structure will be pushed back from the Four's where there will be a civic space and it will be located closer to the center of the lot abutting the sidewalk along Revere Road.
- At the Nova Residences, located at 1500 Hancock Street, work will continue in the interior of the building as well as the mechanical, electrical and plumbing infrastructure below grade coming into the building. The crane which has been placing the module box units on the site is expected to return the second week of January with boxes starting to be set shortly thereafter.

On Tuesday, Christmas Day, Dec. 25 at approximately 12:55 a.m., Officer Andrew Sweeney was dispatched to the CVS at 626 Southern Artery for an attempted larceny of a motor vehicle. Officers Wood, Le and Fish also responded.

Officer Wood was the first to arrive on scene and located the vehicle involved. It was unoccupied at the entrance of the CVS parking lot with its left side doors open. People in the area advised Officer Wood that two males ran from the vehicle towards the Quirk Nissan dealership. Communications then advised the officers that the victim was now across the street at Pet Supplies Plus, so Officer Wood walked across the street and spoke with the victim, who directed the officers to the suspect's nearby location.

Officer Le found the male suspect lying on the ground inside the Pet Supplies Plus parking lot. The victim said he was parked in the CVS lot when he noticed the suspect talking to some other people in the lot. The suspect then walked over to his vehicle, opened the back door and said, "Drive me to Quincy."

The victim said he did not know the suspect and did not have any interaction with him prior to him opening his car door. The victim quickly became concerned due to the hour of night and that he was being confronted by an unknown male who was now behind him halfway in his car. He was also unsure if the suspect was trying to rob him and was associated with other people the suspect was with earlier.

The victim advised the suspect that he could not help him and attempted to drive away with the suspect now holding onto the open back door attempting to get all the way in the vehicle. When the suspect refused to let go of the door, the victim stopped the car. The suspect then opened the driver's door and told the victim to give him the car. The victim, concerned that he could be harmed, got out of the car but took the keys with him. The suspect then climbed into the driver's seat and attempted to start the vehicle. When he realized there were no keys, he ordered the victim to turn over the keys.

The victim refused to turn over the keys, so the suspect got out of the vehicle and again demanded the keys while flexing/hitting his own chest in an aggressive manner. The victim, fearing for his safety, started to run away as he took out his cell phone to call the Police. The suspect gave chase, yelling at the victim, "Give me the keys or I'll break your jaw." The victim was able to outrun the suspect and then called the police again when he didn't see the suspect in the area. He updated his location and described the suspect.

Moments later, Officer Wood made contact with the victim and when Officer Le pulled into the Pet Supplies Plus parking lot, his headlights illuminated the suspect who was lying on the ground after apparently falling while chasing the victim. The victim confirmed that the male on the ground was the suspect.

LT. DAN MINTON

The suspect, a 36-year-old Melrose resident, was placed under arrest and charged with carjacking. Nice Work!

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SERVICE:

The Quincy Police Department lost two members of the its family in December:

Nancy Griffin - Executive Secretary to the Chief of Police, she dedicated 25 years of service to the City of Quincy. She was highly respected for her high level of integrity, her sharp wit and intelligence. Thank you, Nancy!

Captain Anthony DiBona – "Tony" enjoyed his 37 years of service to the Quincy Police Department. Tony had a passion for the job and took on each challenge with compassion for his fellow Officers as well as the public he served. Thank you, Tony!

VEHICLE NOTIFICATION DEPARTMENT:

My daughter received a letter in the mail last week from "VEHICLE NOTIFICATION DEPARTMENT" which stated, "You have not confirmed coverage for extended vehicle protection. Your vehicle's original manufacturer's warranty has expired or will be expiring soon."

She does not own a vehicle. Enough said about this scam. However, if you are in doubt, search the name with the word, "scam" or "reviews" to see what others say.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) issued a warning about a new form of fraud that targets companies, schools and nonprofits around the United States. Scammers are using "Money mules," individuals who (often) unknowingly use their bank accounts to transfer funds for criminals. The FBI is especially concerned about the people who become involved in international money laundering schemes that result in large economic losses. This is often a trial and error scam, to determine which ones work and who the best victims are.

According to an FBI spokesman, "It's a much higher success rate when you have a lot of money using somebody else's account going through there, instead of trying to cross the border with a physical transportation of cash." As a result, law enforcement agencies around the world have increased their efforts against money mule fraud.

In December 2018, Europol announced that it had identified 1,504 money mules, arresting 168. The FBI revealed in June the arrests of 74 people and launched a publicity campaign called "Don't Be a Mule."

One example of the fraud was a criminal posing as an overseas Army captain, who recruited a man he met online to help him make plans to travel home by transferring money in and out of his bank account. The agency noted that $10,000 was wired into the man's account, which he was instructed to withdraw in small increments and send to a woman in Texas.

Since the mules (victims) are often elderly, lonely or confused, the FBI usually gives them stern warnings and skips prosecution.

In November, the FBI took criminal action in these types of mule/victim scams:

 Charges against defendants engaged in IRS imposter and payday loan imposter schemes that used money mules to receive victim payments and transmit proceeds to coconspirators in India.

 Charges against a defendant who received and forwarded proceeds of a romance scam that defrauded victims out of over $800,000.

• Charges against a Ghana native who received and forwarded proceeds of a romance scam that defrauded victims out of over $5 million. A Ghana native was indicted on a 5-million dollar romance-fraud scheme.

"Let's be careful out there."

Mary R. Barron

A funeral Mass for Mary (Naclerio) Barron, endearingly known as Maisie, of Marion, formerly of Quincy, Braintree and Harlow's Landing, will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Thursday in St. Anthony's She will be dearly missed. Church, Mattapoisett.

Mrs. Barron died peacefully Dec. 22 surrounded by the love of family.

She was the cherished wife of the late James B. Barron, with whom she shared fifty-three years of marriage. Daughter of late Ralph and Annie (Robertson) Naclerio, and loving sister of late Ralph Naclerio, Lawrence Naclerio, and Virginia Parrish. Her devotion to her children, Kelly and her husband, Tim Kelleher. of Marion, James and his wife Ana Maria of Jamaica Plain, Michael and his wife Colleen of Braintree, Rachel and her husband Stephen Lynch of Marion, Stephen and his wife Merike of Marion, and Aimée and her husband Dennis Driscoll, of Milton, and grandchildren, Aimée, Timothy, Brendan, Julia, Chloë, Madelyn, Matthew, Emily, Owen, William, Patrick, Isabelle and Sophie, many nieces, nephews, great nieces, great nephews, and cherished friends, is her enduring gift.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Barron specialized in obstetrics and pediatrics, retiring as nursery supervisor after forty years of dedicated service at Quincy City Hospital. She was beloved by her colleagues and the patients for whom she cared. Mrs. Barron was the consummate mother and grandmother; she doted on her family caring, guiding, encouraging, supporting and cheering for them quietly, from the sidelines.

She enjoyed life, gathering family and friends around her kitchen table, the loving preparation of multicultural recipes, decorating her home for the holidays, gardening, dancing, bird watching with grandchildren, egg decoupage, travel, quiet walks on the beach, coffee with the Hail Mary circle, and Tuesday night dinners with friends at Piney Point.

Mrs. Barron's generosity of spirit was powerfully felt by the people she touched. Her genius for friendship and her incandescent smile illuminated the journey of her well-lived life, and her family is grateful to the many friends and care-givers who shared her journey. Mrs. Barron was the proud recipient of the Diocese of Fall River Marian Medal, for contributions to her beloved parish, Saint Rita's Church, Marion.

Visiting hours were 3 to p.m. Wednesday in the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home for Funerals, Mattapoisett. Funeral from the funeral home at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Interment in Old Landing Cemetery, Marion.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Rita's Church, Marion, or to Boston College High School, James B. Barron Scholarship Fund.

Theresa A. Sartorio

A funeral Mass for Theresa A. "Terry" (Lanata) Sartorio of Quincy will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Sartorio died Dec.

She adored her family and was like a mother to her nieces and nephews. Mrs. Sartorio always attended all of their events. She was an avid painter, loved to travel and go to the beach. She was involved with St. John's community and their outings every month and took a weekly art class with the Council on Aging at the Norwell Library.

Mrs. Sartorio worked as a secretary at Boston Redevelopment Authority for over 30 years before retiring. She was a humble, kind, lov-parents can socialize and network with others who have children of the same age," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The Tot Time program will be conducted at the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Road in Quincy Point from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and is open to children age 2 through those not yet enrolled in kindergarten. The department will provide age appropriate toddler play equipment and gym mats with leaders to guide play. Parents or guardians are required to remain at the facility.

The Recreation Department will brew hot coffee for the adults and encourages parents to provide appropriate snacks for their own children.

The cost for the program is $25, and $10 for each additional child in the same family with a $40 maximum. If paid weekly at the program, the cost is $5 for the first child and $2 for each additional child in the same family with a maximum of $8 per family per week.

The Tot Time program will be held on Saturday, Jan. 5th, 12th, 19th, 26th, and Feb. 2nd and 9th. Cancellations due to weather will be made up at the conclusion of the program. ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Romantic aspects are high at this time for single Lambs looking for love. Warm and fuzzy feelings also are at enhanced levels for Rams and Ewes in paired relationships.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week favors what Taureans dote on -- namely, love and money. Look for more meaningful relationships for both singles and pairs, as well as an improved financial outlook.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) All lingering shreds of that recent bout with boredom are dissipated as you eagerly accept a challenging offer. Your positive mood persuades others to join you in this venture.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might need validation for a possible solution to a situation involving someone close to you. Consider asking a trusted friend or relative to help you with this problem.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Investigate carefully before agreeing to assist a friend or colleague with a personal problem. There might be hidden factors that could emerge later that will create problems for you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your decision to work with an associate rather than go it alone, as you first proposed, brings an unexpected bonus. Be careful not to be judgmental. Allow for free and open discussion. LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A loved one's health problem could, once again, make demands on your time and attention. But this time, make some demands of your own, and insist that others pitch in and help.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time for the traditionally staid Scorpion to plan adjustments in your dayto-day schedules. Be more flexible and allow for more impromptu, off-the-cuff actions.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Avoid creating unnecessary fuss over a situation you don't approve of. If it's going to work, it will do so despite your objections. If it fails, it will do so without a push from you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Working with a trusted colleague could open your mind to exploring some considerations you previously dismissed out of hand. The weekend brings news from a loved one.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Resolving a recent problem leaves you in a good position to strengthen your influence on how things get done. But continue to encourage ideas and suggestions from others.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A new friend suggests an interesting opportunity. But check it out before you snap at it. It might be a good deal for some people, but it might not work in helping you reach your goals.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of helping people solve their problems, making you a most-respected counselor and trusted friend.

HOLLYWOOD -- Bradley Cooper -- who rode the wave known as "A Star Is Born" ($400 million at movie box offices) and hit screens recently with Clint Eastwood in "The Mule" -- will be heard but not seen as the voice of Rocket in "Avengers Endgame," due April 26. He'll go live again in a small role in "The Joker" (which he's co-producing), with Joaquin Phoenix and Robert DeNiro, out Oct. 4. Jared Leto played The Joker in "Suicide Squad" (2016), which made a whopping $747 million.

Lucas Hedges, fast becoming the hottest actor in Hollywood because of films such as "Manchester By the Sea" (2016), for which he was Oscar nominated; "Lady Bird" (2017); "Three Billboards" (2017); the current hit "Boy Erased" (2018); and Amazon's "Ben Is Back" (2018), with Julia Roberts. Hedges completed "Honey Boy," written by and starring Shia LaBeouf (which screened at Sundance this month), and now is before the cameras filming the musical drama "Waves," with Sterling K. Brown.

The juggernaut known as Disney Studios is projected to break its 2016 worldwide box-office record of $7.6 billion. By mid-December it had already earned $7 billion, thanks to "Avengers: Infinity War," "Black Panther," "The Incredibles," "Ant-Man and The Wasp" and "Star Wars: The Last Jedi." "Ralph Breaks the Internet" and "Mary Poppins Returns" already are smashing box-office records. On up "Avengers Endgame," which undoubtedly will go through the roof (the trailer amassed 289 million views in its first 24 hours).

The sequel to 2016's "Doctor Strange" (which grossed $677 million) will be directed by Scott Derrickson ("The Exorcism of Emily Rose"). "Doctor Strange" is based on the 1963 Marvel Comic "Strange Tales No. 110." Another venture by DC Comics, "Plastic Man," based on a 1941 comic book, is in preproduction for the big screen. Meanwhile, Keifer Sutherland and Helena Bonham Carter are lending their voices to the "Call of Duty: Black Ops 4" video

Two-time Oscar winner Jodie Foster -- "The Accused" (1988) and "The Silence of the Lambs" (1991) -- is taking on the English version of the Icelandic thriller/comedy "Iceland," now called "Women at War," as the director and star.

Oscar, Emmy and threetime Golden Globe-winner Faye Dunaway will take on Katharine Hepburn in the former off-Broadway show "Tea at Five" (which originally starred Kate Mulgrew of "Star Trek: Voyager" fame) on Broadway next summer. "Network" (the film Faye won an Oscar for in 1976), on Broadway with Bryan Cranston, ends its run in April, before she gets there. Wonder if she'll have a catchphrase as Hepburn, as she did as Joan Crawford in "Mommie Dearest" (1991), when she uttered those immortal words ... "NO WIRE HANGERS!"

Collectors want hooked rugs made as early as the 1830s. Almost all old rugs offered for sale are made on backings of free burlap from old feed sacks after 1850. Some of the betterknown rugs of the 1900s were made with strips of used clothes. Grenfell Mission rugs of 1916 used silk stockings, and in the 1950s, nylon stockings or T-shirt strips. The rugs became so popular that classes were formed, lessons were given and commercial patterns were sold. This folk-art craft of the poor was wanted by decorators for the well-to-do, so prices went

Today, collectors pay the most for early rugs with animal designs or flowers. Rugs made from prestamped Edward Frost designs on burlap backing made in the late 1800s also get high prices. All Grenfell Mission rugs and mats are popular, and contemporary mats from the original old patterns still are made. Hutchinson rugs designed in the 1920s to 1940s are desirable. They often have funny pictures and sayings. A rug showing a man chasing a woman that reads "Take, oh! Take Those Lips Away!" sold at Garth's Auctioneers for $1,560.

A: Bush & Lane made

upright, grand and player pianos under several brand names. The company startpieces of yarn left over ed in Chicago in 1891 under the name Victor Piano & Organ Co. The name was changed to Bush & Lane Piano Co. in 1904. The factory moved to Holland, Michigan, by 1905. It went out of business in 1930. If your piano is marked Chicago, it probably was made in about 1904. You can contact stores in your area that sell used pianos to get an appraisal. They also may want to buy your piano, but don't expect to get a big price for an old upright unless the case is very ornate. Similar pianos have sold in recent years for under a few hundred dollars.

Now here's a tip!

* "I save individual milk jugs from my kids' fastfood meals. They're the perfect size for packing milk in a lunchbox, and also for taking a bit of coffee creamer for the office fridge -- not too big, and easily portable." -- D.L. in Maine

* Got extra mittens? Then you'll love this tip: If find yourself with several mittens without matches, simply use them to dust around the house. Slip on a glove and dust away! They work five ways: 1) Rubbing alcohol; 2) WD-40; 3) Vinegar; 4) Nail polish remover (not for use on glossy surfaces -- spot test first); 5) Dish soap.

plush toys? Freshen up by spraying with women's dry shampoo, and then rub with a dry cloth."

* To clean spills in the oven, cover with baking soda and let cool. Then scrape out as much as possible with a metal spatula. Use damp steel wool for thick messes, or a plastic scrubbie for small jobs.

* Don't forget to open and close all windows regularly, just to keep the tracks free of obstructions and clean. It might not be a big deal now, but in the spring * Removing sticky residue, if you want to air out your home, you might find yourself with a stuck window.

School officials first proposed transferring the stadium to the park department in November. They said the park department is better equipped to maintain and upgrade the facility. The park department has always maintained the stadium and financed from the city budget, not from the school department.

Under the park department control, the school department would still receive

In other matters: the committee approved a $20,000 grant secured by the Quincy Police Department and school department to install alarm buttons in various areas of each school; accepted a $6,000 gift from the Randy Wolfe Trust for the district's music program; and accepted 203 handmade hats, mittens and scarves from The Seaside Stitches to be distributed to students in need.

The committee approved an update of an emergency procedures chart that is part of its policy book.

Also approved were two out-of-country trips: a trip to Bilbao, Spain, Feb. 15 to 24 for Quincy High School grade 11 and 12 students; and Ouincy High grades 9 to 12 student exchange trip to Borgo di Sam Lorenzo, Italy, April 10 to 19.
